SATURDAY EVENING, APRIL 19, 1872.

We are under obligation to Hon. John A. Logan for a copy of the Congressional Record containing his speech in the senate on Tuesday.

The Philadelphia Common Council has decided to send a committee to California to see Gen. Grant, and the Assembly of New York has passed a resolution to tender the hospitalities of the state to the distinguished American on his return.

Mississippi and Louisiana have commenced calling a mass meeting to consider the negro exodus and take measures to allay the excitement. The best way to allay the excitement would be for the same Mississippians and Louisianians to hide their six-shooters.—Chicago Journal.

A few weeks ago it was reported that there was in crib along the Springfield (Ill.) and Northwestern Railroad over 500,000 bushels of corn, awaiting purchasers. Later information states that the larger portion of this corn has been purchased by parties in Chicago and New York, and that the Northwest has been taxed to its utmost to supply ears in which to haul it away.

NOTICING the election of senator Thurman as President pro tem. of the senate, the Cincinnati Star says: "He is an Ohio man, and in case of the death of the President and Vice President, he would become the chief magistrate of the nation," and then adds with considerable enthusiasm: "It is perhaps, not treason to Ohio to observe that Mr. Thurman is now probably closer to the Presidency than he will ever be again."

We are only just now on the threshhold of a new democratic era of corruption. The infamies which marked the last democratic administration have been well nigh forgotten by the average observer. They belong to an almost prehistoric age. But wherever democratic power has secured power in the several states, there has been financial corruption. Repudiation, extravagance, and criminal recklessness have characterized the management of criminal affairs in Missouri, Louisiana, Tennessee, and other of the states in which democratic rule has replaced republican rule. As soon as the democratic party secures a foothold anywhere, stealing, trading, and all manner of discreditable practices are in order. While they were out of power with no opportunity to steal, the democrats were clamorous for reform. As soon as they force their way to the public crib they begin to fight over the spoils.—N. Y. Times.

New Grant and his Party took Leave of the Maharajah.

Correspondent of the New York Herald: Then we strolled into the garden and looked at the palace towers, which the Prince took pleasure in showing the General, and which looked airy and beautiful in the rose shadows of the descending sun. There were beds of flowers and trees, and the coming night, which comes so swiftly in these latitudes, brought a cooling breeze. Then His Highness gave us each a photograph of his royal person consecrated with his royal autograph, which he wrote on the top of a marble rolling. Then we strolled toward the grand hall of ceremony to take our leave. Taking leave is a solemn act in India. We entered the spacious hall where the Prince received the Prince of Wales. Night had come so rapidly that servants came in all directions carrying candles and probes that lit up the gaudy and glittering hall. An attendant carried a gay bearing wreath of the rose and camomile. The Maharajah, taking two of these leaves, put them on the neck of the General. He did the same to Mrs. Grant and all the members of the party. Then taking a string of gold and blue cord, he placed that on Mrs. Grant as a special honor. The General, who was instructed by the English agent, took four wreaths and put one on the neck of the Maharajah. He pressed his hands and bowed his head. Another servant came, bearing small cup of gold and gems containing a star of roses. The Maharajah, taking some of the perfume on his fingers, transferred it to Mrs. Grant's bracelet. With another portion he traced his hands along the General's back and shoulders, and so concluded the ceremony which in all royal interview in the East is supposed to mean lasting friendship. Then the Prince, taking Gen. Grant's hand in his own, led him from the hall, across the garden to the gateway of the palace, holding his head all the while. Our carriage was waiting, and the Prince said his leave, saying how much he enjoyed by the General's visit. The guard was formed in line, the guard saluted, and we drove at a full trot to our home. And so ended one of those interesting and eventful days on our visit to India.

SOBER SECOND THOUGHTS.

From the New York Tribune.
The Republican victories in the recent elections only mark the beginning of one great change in public opinion and the progress of another. To interpret them rightly it must be remembered that a marked change in public opinion on financial questions had already commenced when the elections of last year were held. A great increase in Republican strength was then apparent. But the change this year is still more remarkable. It is due in part to the growth of sound opinions on financial questions, the Republicans are more united in support of reconstruction than ever before, and the theories of Greenbackism have lost their hold with a great many voters. It could hardly be otherwise, men being in any degree reasoning creatures. Reconstruction was greatly dreaded, but it has been tried. The predicted disasters do not exist, on the contrary, the times are already better for everybody. The false theories which have made so much mischief have drawn most of their support from the blind desire to escape from the severe strain of settlement for the debt of inflation. As the strain is lifted men begin to recover their common sense. It is not possible that this reaction of public opinion should be arrested as long as times continue to improve and specific payments work out without disaster or distress.

But another very important change in public opinion has commenced, of which there was but little, if any, evidence last fall. It is true, though, and minors Republicans had begun to fear the election last year to realize very fully the spirit of the solid south, and the dangers involved by its rapid advance toward power. Appreciation of that spirit and those dangers probably turned the scale in 1876. Yet it is true that it was almost confined to earnest Republicans at that time, and it had effect mainly in kindling them to greater effort. The solid south had not yet clearly shown its temper. If infamous things were done, men were ready to accept the explanation that there were the exceptional excesses of individuals. If an ugly spirit shown, it was thought that the anxiety to get rid of local misgovernment in some of the Southern states was some excuse, and that such a spirit would be shown no longer when the Southern states should be fully controlled by their property-owning citizens. As long as these explanations were accepted, those who had separated from the Republican party because of its course on this question still remained in a hostile or independent position, and some Republicans were lukewarm.

There is an end of all doubt at last. Every sane man now knows that the temper of the solid South is quite as vicious, defiant, sectional, revolutionary and dangerous as it was in 1861. It has not changed for the better, but has only adopted less manly and more insidious methods. Now, as then, it is "rule or ruin." Now, as then, the South is made bold by an infamous despotism, and the North is divided by corruption and fraud. All this the country sees in spite of the fact that the Southern states enjoy all the freedom that they have ever desired. Liberality, kindness, patience, generous concession, all have been wasted upon the rooted hostility of the South. Now the North begins to understand the fact, just as earnest Republicans only understood it some years ago. And the change of sentiment, toward an absolute union of the north to resist the aggressive and revolutionary demands of a solid South, is the most striking feature of the recent elections. It is no longer Republicans only who are moral. Democrats and Independents by the thousand, who were loyal when the Union was assailed by arms, now see the necessity of being not less stern and resolute in their resistance to less honorable but more dangerous modes of assault.

THE NEGRO EXODUS.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The speech of representative Burrows, of Michigan, today, on the political amendments took the House by surprise. His edition of the incendiary portions of the speech of the Democrats, to show by their own words that they were committed to revolution, struck them with consternation. His quotation from Blackburn's speech, that the gaze of battle is thrown down, and his answer, that it is an supreme pleasure to take it up, was greeted with rounds of applause from the Republican side and the galleries. His answer to the threat of the Democrats that they would starve the Government into submission was one of the most touching and effective pieces of oratory heard in the House for years, especially when he said that the loyal people who came forward with their lives in war will come again with their treasure to peace, and pour it out to the Government, that the people will surer the Government till the end of the Congress, by which time they will have swept the Democratic party from the face of the earth. At this juncture the bidding was intense and the applause beyond control. The feeling on the Democratic side reached such a height, as the orator dealt his crushing blows, that Mr. Turner, of Kentucky, who had been shaking his long arm and brawny fist, shouted, "You're a d—d liar." Other expressions of abuse were uttered, which could hardly be distinguished in the confusion which prevailed on the Democratic side. After his speech Mr. Burrows was greeted by the congratulations of his friends, all proceeded to the dining-room, where a beautiful repast was served, and merry conversation, toasts and general good humor prevailed, rendering the occasion a most happy one. The parlors and corridor of the Consulate were tastefully decorated with holly and evergreen, and the air was heavy with the sweet perfume of the many tropical flowers.

Singing, music and dancing were kept up until 3 o'clock in the morning, when the guests departed, having spent a most enjoyable evening.

Among the bridal presents was an elaborate dinner service of silver, presented by the groomsmen, Sirs Shirley Hart and Honeyer, a complete dinner service of white French china, bearing the card and compliments of Frederick and Ada Petersen, an elegant diamond vine and cutlass, a gift sent from the sister in England to the bride, a handsome jeweled ring from the bride's father, a beautiful gold watch and chain from the parents of the bride, bouquets of beautiful flowers from the bride maids, and little Miss Mandie Trowbridge one of white flowers, a handsome walnut chamber set from the parents of the groom, and from the groom a diamond silver mine.

On the American steamship "City of New York," Captain Deaken, leaving here on the 23d inst., the bride and her father will sail for Europe via New York city, and will remain in England, visiting their family and many friends, until after the next big fever season has passed, when they will return home in Plymouth, and after a short visit abroad through Europe, return to their home and friends in Vicksburg.

The Senator said that nothing short of an unqualified recognition of the civil rights of the colored race and the exercise of the franchise could avert the determination of the House to seek a home where all these prerogatives of citizenship could be secured. The Senators and Representatives from the States immediately affected by the colored element have been in conference with their colleagues from other sections, who fear that the movement may extend to their localities, seriously affecting the planting and harvesting of the cotton, sugar and rice crops and increase the price of labor. They admit that the difficulty can not be remedied by legislation, but rest with the ruling class.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The Democratic senators pressed for action today on the resolution rescinding the vote giving the President of the Senate supervisory power over the removal of an employee in the Secretary's office, and encountered the united opposition of the Republicans who made the point that when they came into power in 1861 the rule was in existence, and had been faithfully observed so long as they retained control of the Senate. The discussion occupied the whole of the morning hour, and the resolution then went over under the rules.

The army bill was taken up, and Mr. McKinley, of Ohio, made a very strong speech.

URBANA, Ill., April 18.—Mr. Jacob Morris was put on trial here this afternoon in the Criminal Court, for the murder of her husband, Jacob E. Morris, at Philo, this county, three weeks since. She plunged a butcher knife deep into his brain, from which he died in terrible convulsions. A large number of jurors were called in the afternoon without filling the panel. Judge Nelson gave notice that the trial would go on to night. The case excites great interest, as the recollection of the bloody deed is fresh in the public mind.

DAVENPORT, Ia., April 18.—A colored emigrant aid society was organized here last night with a good membership. The purpose of the society is to help colored people who leave the south for Kansas and northern states. Even with such extraordinary precautions, it is said the suspicion that something was in the wind induced others who had not been counseled, to forward bids to the amount of $40,000,000 or $50,000,000.

The Post says the depressing effect of refunding on the market rates of money will be actively present for the next ninety days, and we may expect to see the rate for loans within that time as they were during January, February and the latter part of March.

With money plentiful at 1 per cent, in London, it will be strange if the United States 1 per cent are not taken there to a larger extent than heretofore. Except for the danger of the bonds being paid in silver, there would be no doubt of it.

TROWBRIDGE—STEPHENS.

Wedding at the American Consulate, Vera Cruz, New Mexico.

We are in receipt of a letter from Vera Cruz, Mexico, announcing the marriage of Mr. Charlie Trowbridge, son of Dr. S. T. Trowbridge, American Consul at that port, with Miss Eddie Stephens, of Plymouth, England, daughter of Rev. R. Stephens. As the bridegroom has many acquaintances and friends in this city, where he formerly resided, we give an account of the wedding ceremonies as detailed in a Vera Cruz paper. The affair seems to have been an exceedingly pleasant one, and the reception will be held with much interest by old friends here.

This happy event occurred at the American Consulate in Vera Cruz, on Thursday evening, April 3, 1872. Mr. Charlie Trowbridge, U. S. Vice Consul for this place, only son of Dr. S. T. Trowbridge, U. S. Consul at Vera Cruz, formerly of Decatur, Illinois, and Miss Kate Stephens, daughter of Rev. R. Stephens, of the M. E. Mission in Orizaba, Mexico, being the contracting parties.

By special permission of the Governor, Gen. Luis Mier y Teran, the civil service was enacted by His Honor, the Judge of the Court of this Canton, at 8 o'clock; immediately at the close of which the religious ceremony was performed by Rev. M. N. Hutchinson, of the Presbyterian Mission in Mexico, assisted by Rev. R. Stephens, father of the bride. The bride was attended by four matrons of the group, Misses Mary, Matilda and Katie Trowbridge and Mrs. Ada Petersen. The companions of the group were Miss James Shirley, John Hart, Ernst Honeyer and Frederick Petersen. The invited guests were the immediate friends of the Trowbridge family, and several matronesses were represented, comprising English, German, Mexican, Spanish and American ladies and gentlemen, to about one hundred in number. The bride looked most lovely in the traditional white satin, long trailing bridal robe, princess, adorned with Point de Brabant lace and orange blossoms. Her long flowing veil was festooned with orange blossoms and so arranged that it gracefully fell over her blushing face, producing a charming effect. The attending bridesmaids were tastefully attired in evening dresses of white tulipan adorned with puffs and knife-pleatings and white satin ribbons.

Immediately after the happy pair had received the congratulations of their friends, all proceeded to the dining-room, where a beautiful repast was served, and merry conversation, toasts and general good humor prevailed, rendering the occasion a most happy one. The parlors and corridor of the Consulate were tastefully decorated with holly and evergreen, and the air was heavy with the sweet perfume of the many tropical flowers.
